

Cable tray cover plate fixing clips

Article Overview

Cable tray cover plates can be securely fixed using snap-on clips, seven-shaped buckles, or clasping methods, providing quick, reusable, and stable attachment.

Clip-Based Fixing

Snap-on clips are a common and efficient method for securing cable tray covers. The clip is designed to snap onto the side of the tray cover, with the main body inside the tray and a smaller part gripping the cover. This creates a strong, stable connection using simple pressure, without the need for special tools. Clips are often made from 304 stainless steel, offering corrosion resistance for indoor and some outdoor applications. They are reusable, allowing easy removal for maintenance, and are ideal for quick installations or areas where covers may need frequent access, though they are less suitable for high-vibration environments. Some clip models may include a screw for a more permanent hold, enhancing grip strength in high-traffic areas (Apex Tray) .

Seven-Shaped Buckle and Clasping Methods

Another clip-based option is the seven-shaped buckle, which locks the cover by clamping the tray and cover together. This method is simple and cost-effective, providing a secure hold for horizontal installations. Similarly, clasping methods use bent folds at the ends of the clip to hold the cover in place. These methods do not require punching holes in the cover, but the fixing strength is generally limited, and vertical installations may be less secure, as the cover can slip off more easily (HFCableTray)
