

Foreign companies that manufacture optical modules

Article Overview

Key foreign manufacturers of optical modules include Coherent (Finisar), Cisco (Acacia), Marvell, Broadcom, Intel, II-VI, Lumentum, and NeoPhotonics.

Leading Foreign Companies

Coherent (Finisar) – A major U.S.-based optical module supplier, Finisar (now part of Coherent) specializes in high-speed optical transceivers and coherent modules for data centers and telecom networks, consistently ranking among the top global suppliers . Cisco (Acacia) – Cisco acquired Acacia Communications, a leader in coherent optical modules, providing solutions for long-haul, metro, and data center interconnects . Marvell – Known for high-performance optical interconnect solutions, Marvell supplies modules for hyperscale data centers and enterprise networks . Broadcom – A dominant player in optical ICs, Broadcom produces high-speed driver ICs and optical transceiver chips supporting 100G, 200G, 400G, and higher data rates, widely deployed in hyperscale and telecom networks . Intel – A pioneer in silicon photonics, Intel develops integrated photonic transceiver chips for coherent and direct-detect optical links, enabling 400G and 800G connections . II-VI/Finisar – II-VI, after acquiring Finisar, provides a broad portfolio of optical modules and photonic integration solutions for high-speed networking . Lumentum – Specializes in optical components and modules, including coherent and direct-detect transceivers for telecom and data center applications . NeoPhotonics – Focuses on high-speed optical modules and silicon photonics solutions for long-haul, metro, and data center networks .
