

Moving large distribution boxes

Article Overview

Large distribution boxes can be efficiently moved using sturdy, double-walled cardboard boxes, proper packing materials, and careful handling techniques.

Choosing the Right Boxes

For moving large or heavy items, double-walled or reinforced cardboard boxes are recommended as they provide extra strength and durability during transport. Suppliers like Packing Boxes offer a wide range of single and double-walled boxes, including bespoke options for specific items such as bicycles, televisions, or wardrobe cartons, which can be ideal for bulky distribution goods . Smartpackaging also provides ready-made moving kits and large cardboard boxes suitable for industrial or home use .

Packing Materials

To protect contents inside large boxes, use bubble wrap, packing paper, corner protectors, and shrink wrap. These materials prevent damage from shifting during transport and are available from suppliers like Pack With Boxworks and Boxes2u . For fragile items, labeling boxes as "Fragile" and using additional padding is essential.

Handling and Transport

- Lift with care: Always bend your knees and keep your back straight when lifting heavy boxes.
- Use equipment: Dollies, hand trucks, or pallet jacks can make moving large boxes...
