

Price of a Simple Cover for a Distribution Box

Article Overview

A basic plastic cover for a small distribution box typically costs between $5 and $20 per unit, depending on size, material, and supplier.

Overview

Distribution box covers are protective components designed to safeguard electrical circuits and equipment from dust, moisture, and accidental contact. They are available in various materials, including plastic, metal, or composite, and may feature hinged doors or snap-on designs for easy access and maintenance . Simple covers are usually made of durable plastic and are suitable for low-voltage applications below 1000 volts .

Price Range

- Small plastic covers (e.g., 1×6 modules, 108mm length) are generally priced around $5–$10 per piece for individual purchases .
- Larger or multi-way covers for 5–24 circuit breakers can range from $10–$20, depending on waterproofing (IP65/IP67), material quality, and brand .
- Wholesale or bulk orders may reduce the per-unit cost significantly, especially when ordering from manufacturers on platforms like Alibaba or Made-in-China .

Factors Affecting Price

- Material: Plastic is cheaper than metal or composite covers....
