

Reflective Communication Equipment

Article Overview

Reflective communication can be enhanced using assistive devices like microphones, eye gaze boards, and communication tablets, alongside tools for reflective listening and journaling.

Assistive Communication Devices

For individuals with speech impairments or those needing support in communication, the following equipment is recommended:

- Voice Banking Devices: Record personal audio to create a synthetic voice for future communication .
- Message Banking Tools: Record personal messages for easier communication .
- Specialized Microphones: Includes unidirectional mics on flexible goosenecks, headband-mounted mics, and throat vibration sensors, designed for weak or breathy voices .
- Eye Gaze Communication Boards: Allow users to select items on a board using eye movement, ideal for severe speech impairments .
- Communication Tablets: LCD tablets provide a writing alternative to paper and pencil, supporting expressive communication .
- Partner-Assisted Tools: Simple boards or laser pointers for guided communication with a partner .
